

If any legislation is created concerning Telephone Privacy Action, the legislation should only be equal to or greater in restriction than those already in place by any existing state or local legislation. As with any law, new legislation should be designed to improve not diminish existing and effective laws or legislation. Ours the peoples rights have been protected by our government, and to lessen the effects or remove the hard work of those who have fought for these rights does not represent our interest or uphold the positions of those doing so. Make new bills, but make them so that they improve, not take away from what we have worked so hard for already.
